

ABOUT ME

My name is Zeyad Omran, I am currently an IBDP Student and an aspiring software developer. In the last 3 years I discovered my passion for programming and I wondered ever since about how applications are made. Then in 2017 when I first joined IBDP I joined computer science, this was the first step in achieving my goals and following my passion, and hopefully in the future I aim on studying computer science in university and continue following my passion and help create a better world for the next generation. I consider myself as a leader, and a communicator. I like to be a part of a group and even organize my own team and motivate them to do their best in anything that we do.
